

Dedicated to the one I love,

Bebiii, I'm happy you said yes. This is our first 14th of February together, and I hope we can live all the rest ones side by side.

I am glad and feel lucky to have you, despite our fights, despite now environment between us is not the best, i will keep loving you with my soul. I will never stop believing in us, our love and in the life we are gonna build together, I know we will achieve our goals because what we have is real.

Sorry for not being the best version of myself from the beginning but i promise you I'm working hard to become the man you always deserved, I wanna grow not just for myself but for us.

For now, thousands of miles separate us apart, I wish I could spend a day like this by your side, but for now all we can do is wait till the day we finally can move in together and feel each other's presence that we've been craving for so many time.

Until then, I'll keep loving you the only way I can that is through calls, text and pics, through caring, through worrying about you, through trying to make you smile and laugh. And even when I mess things up, I'm learning, I'm changing, I'm letting go all those unhealthy attitudes of me because I want a healthy future with you.

There's no single second that u disappear from my mind, that's why i am not giving up on us. And i will fight every battle, no matter how hard it gets, because even if love can get difficult sometimes, that's why is worth everything for me.

And I fight because I felt what healthy love feels like, and it's been with you. Even if it was only for a few days before all chaos started, i was able to feel it. And that feeling is real and wonderful, that's another reason why I'm not getting off the train. I know we are capable to be the happiest together.

Nowadays, people say to forget, to give up as soon as things don't go well, that there are more fishes in the sea. But that new bullshit way of thinking ain't my philosophy. My philosophy of love is choosing the same person over and over again, even when things get to the lowest. And i will keep choosing you.

Between all the smiles in this world, my favourite will always be yours, and I want to be the reason because it never disappears. I want to be the one who listens to your problems, who wipes your tears when things get hard, who brings you flowers on a random day just to make you happy and see you smile. I want to take care of you when you're sick, carry your bags when we go shopping and most of all, be the one who makes you feel safe and cared.

I choose you. I choose you because I know how you love, how deeply you care, how big and wonderful is the connection between our souls and because every time I think about you, a smile appears on my face. Even when we're not texting, I can be happy just because I have you.

I will face every problem. I will cross this dark storm until we reach the light again together. And if I fall 99 times, I will stand up 100 because I refuse to let our love die.

I'm sorry if saying all this bothers you or it is not the best moment, but my heart tells me to do it.

Te amo.

